“GreeNG Initiatives in Aerospace Manufacturing”

Mr. David Hitchings, Corporate Program Director, Flexible Office and greeNG Initiative - NORTHROP GRUMMAN is speaking on November 12th, 2009 in St. Augustine Florida at The Renaissance Resort at World Golf Village.

We are delighted to have Mr. Hitchings speak on one of several strategic and critical issues that effects both Oem/s and suppliers collaboration within the commercial and military aerospace sectors. Mr. Hitchings is currently the Corporate Program Director for two strategically important initiatives at the Northrop Grumman Corporate Office; Flexible Office and greeNG Internal Initiatives. He is a 21 year veteran of Northrop Grumman and has held a number of key positions in the company running important Company-wide programs. His background is in computer engineering for weapons system programs. He has also lead major IT projects across the company. His diverse background and ability to lead complex projects lead him to Northrop Grumman’s strategic initiative greeNG. The initiative is the cornerstone in the transformation of Northrop Grumman’s internal operation to a more sustainable future. He is the creator of the ECOmodel that is used to evaluate environmental and energy efficiency projects against a triple bottom line.
